Group trying to steer Halifax Transit in the right direction

It's More Than Buses.

Members discuss bus lanes, less duplication, better use of transfers

BRAEDON CLARK

halifax@metronews.ca

A member of the group It's More Than Buses looks into the crowd Thursday night and asks a simple question.

"How many people here are 100 per cent satisfied with Halifax Transit?" Sean Gillis inquires.

Total hands in the room: about 180. Hands raised: zero.

That response summed up the mood at the appropriately named Bus Stop Theatre on Gottingen Street, where the group held a meeting to discuss changes to Halifax's transit system.

"We need to get it right the first time, because we won't have a chance like this again for a long time," said group member Mark Nener.

The meeting drew almost 100 people, many of whom expressed displeasure with the city's current public-transit system.

"Having 20 buses running down Barrington Street is a disaster," said Tristan Cleveland. "There should just be one or two lines going down that street. It would make things so much easier."

Discussion focused on achieving a transit system that is fast, frequent, reliable and user-friendly. Possible solutions included bus-only lanes and improving efficiency through less duplication and better use of transfers.

"If we want to create a great city, we need more people on the bus," Gillis said.

The meeting came a week after city staffers told a council committee that a transfer-based network system — like the one It's More Than Buses is proposing — might not be feasible in Halifax due to low population.

The debate surrounding public transit is sure to heat up as the city inches closer to an announced five-year redesign of the system that is scheduled to begin in January.

Respect stopped school buses, cops warn

Halifax police have given eight tickets this week. JEFF HARPER/METRO FILE

The spokesman for Halifax Regional Police has a simple message for drivers after eight tickets were handed out this week to people driving by school buses with red lights flashing.

"You have to stop. There's no 'if' or 'but' or 'maybe I'm going to be busy,'" said Const. Pierre Bourdages. "If you don't stop you may kill someone."

Bourdages said all eight tickets were issued in the intersection of Hammonds Plains Road and Killarney Drive in Bedford, which is "notorious" for these incidents. He said officers were already monitoring the area due to complaints and that they will continue to do so.

The fine for a first offence is $406. That jumps to $694 for a second and $1,269 for a third.

Bourdages said stopping for buses is not new and drivers should know it is illegal to pass even if you're in the opposite lane.

Doug Hadley, Halifax Regional School Board spokesman, said he was "very concerned" to hear of so many incidents in one week but was glad Halifax police were enforcing the law and notifying residents.

"The publication of this will help to increase awareness," Hadley said.

Although the board hasn't planned to install cameras on buses to catch speeders' licence plates, Hadley said they are interested to see if those installed by the Cape Breton board change driver behaviour.

Heads up, Halifax! New pedestrian safety campaign coming your way

City streets. Plan designed to focus on shared responsibility, accountability for road safety

A new crosswalk safety awareness campaign is set to kick off in Halifax in mid-October, focused on the concept that everyone on the road shares the responsibility for safe travels — whether they're in a car or not.

HRM's managing director of corporate communications presented the proposed messaging to the crosswalk safety advisory committee Thursday, saying the key goal is to emphasize the human aspect of road safety and not to lay blame.

"Because people in cars or crosswalks are human beings, just like me, it's important that we all do our part to get home safely," said Bruce DeBaie. "We all owe it to each other."

The committee approved the campaign, applauding in

Mixed messages

A professor's concern

At the request of one member of the crosswalk safety advisory committee, HRM staff will look for ways to align the Heads up, Halifax! campaign with another, very similar campaign being launched around the same time.

Dalhousie University professor and committee member Ahsan Habib told the committee the Thumbs up, Nova Scotia! campaign is a provincially funded "share the road" effort created by his group, the Dalhousie Transportation Collaboratory or DalTRAC.

Habib said the Thumbs up! campaign focuses on more than just pedestrian safety, and there's a risk of confusion over mixed messaging. "One (campaign) is saying one-metre rule, visibility — Thumbs up! One is saying Heads up!" he said. "People will not take two messages."

RUTH DAVENPORT/METRO

particular the slogan "Heads up, Halifax!" — a "call to action" that DeBaie said is universal and high-impact.

DeBaie said the campaign will use collision data and police statistics to build awareness of safe practices for pedestrians, cyclists, skateboarders, and drivers — all of whom constitute "traffic."

"The goal here is to make sure that people realize that there are contributing factors and there are indicators that we can be aware of that can help prevent you from becoming a statistic," he said.

DeBaie said ideas for dissemination included "unexpected" formats, like decals on sidewalks near crosswalks and bus wraps that make passengers on the bus part of the ad. The campaign will be in full swing during a Crosswalk Safety Awareness Day on Nov. 5, and DeBaie said there are ideas to get the message out to local crosswalks via posters and volunteers wearing hats, pins and T-shirts.

"The idea was to take the campaign creative and extend it ... into a crosswalk environment," he said. "We marshal teams of people who will have a 'crosswalk captain' ... creating a presence of the call to action."

The proposal for a safety awareness campaign was included in the committee's action plan, submitted to regional council in March.

The awareness campaign will run for two six-week periods starting in mid-October and mid-February.

Police as of August, 148 people had been hit by vehicles this year.

Crosswalk safety group hosting public info session

The city's crosswalk safety committee will partner with a Dalhousie University research group to tell residents about its work — and get their thoughts on how it's going.

The crosswalk safety advisory committee agreed Thursday to host an information café meeting in November, delivering on a promise in their action plan to engage with and seek input from the broader community.

Dalhousie professor Ahsan Habib volunteered to "piggyback" the event onto ongoing public workshops his group — the Dalhousie Transportation Collaboratory, or DalTRAC — is holding for its research project on road safety.

"It's letting the public know what we found in our collision studies, as well ... share information on what can we do for engineering countermeasures, in terms of education, in terms of pedestrian and biking safety," he explained after the meeting.

Committee members said the meeting isn't intended to be a forum for residents to ask for new crosswalks, or vent frustrations about current pedestrian infrastructure.

"There needs to be an education component where we are presenting to the public ... about what the committee's doing," said Coun. Darren Fisher. "And certainly we need to have feedback from them as well ... maybe feedback on the things we've talked about in our work plan."

No set time, location

The committee tentatively agreed on the information café set-up, which will include presentations by Habib and the committee on their work, followed by informal conversations with experts in the room on topics such as engineering, education and enforcement, among others.

Province names CEO to lead newly merged health board

Janet Knox. Health minister hopes changes lead to single voice

The CEO of two health boards in southern Nova Scotia will lead a new amalgamated health authority that will run most hospitals in the province next year.

Janet Knox of both Annapolis Valley Health and South Shore Health will advise the province as it continues consolidating its 10 boards and she will become the new health authority's CEO on April 1.

Reducing the number of health authorities from 10 to two — one for the IWK Health Centre in Halifax and one for the rest of the province — was an election promise made last year by the Liberal party.

"We have an opportunity to build a system that thinks and acts like one," Health Minister Leo Glavine said Thursday.

The Liberals have said the province will save $13 million a year through amalgamation.

Glavine has said that while most of the savings would come from shared services and staffing reductions, the only positions to be cut would be from management.

The Liberals have been under pressure from the opposition parties to outline how much would be saved in the first year of amalgamation when they cut the jobs of CEOs and vice-presidents in the health-care system.

Glavine wasn't able to give a precise answer on Thursday, but he said it will be in the millions of dollars.

NDP health critic Dave Wilson isn't convinced, saying the severance costs for senior executives will be expensive.

"I'm concerned that other jurisdictions have done this and it has cost tens of millions of dollars in severance and paying off CEOs and VPs to leave the system," he said.

"That money should be going to frontline health care." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Students group wants tuition drop to 2011 levels

The provincial chapter of The Canadian Federation of Students is calling for a three-year action plan aimed at "improving the quality and affordability" of post-secondary education in Nova Scotia.

According to a release on Thursday, students are recommending the provincial government reduce tuition fees to 2011 levels right away, develop a plan to eliminate tuition fees by 2026, and convert all provincial student loans to grants.

It would cost about $140 million to meet the recommendations, the release states.

The group was hoping to make its pitch to Kelly Regan, the minister of Labour and Advanced Education, as well as 10 university presidents at a meeting in Halifax on Thursday, but say they weren't allowed.

According to the group, undergraduate students in Nova Scotia pay an average of $6,440 a year in tuition, $481 more than the national average. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Collapse at fish plant injures three

A construction worker in southwestern Nova Scotia was taken to hospital with serious injuries on Thursday after the roof on a partially built warehouse collapsed on him in a tangled heap.

Two other workers received minor injuries as the roof came down around 5:30 p.m. near the wharf in Newellton, a small town on Cape Sable Island about 250 kilometres southwest of Halifax.

Mike Swim, station chief at the Island and Barrington Passage Fire Department, said the third man was badly hurt as he fell from the roof and was trapped in its trusses.

The man was rescued after firefighters spent 45 minutes cutting through the wooden beams with reciprocating saws, he said.

The building under construction is a so-called tank shop, which shelters large lobster tanks.

"The (trusses) came down inside of the tank," Swim said in an interview from the fire station in Clarks Harbour.

"I'm not sure what caused them to come down (on the man).... We had to block and cut the roof trusses away from him."

Once the trapped man was pulled from the wrecked building, he was taken to the hospital in Yarmouth, a hour's drive away. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cops release images of suspects in counterfeit currency probe

Losses in the thousands of dollars: Police. Fake American $50 bills being used in Halifax, Dartmouth

HALEY RYAN
haley.ryan@metronews.ca

Police in Halifax have released the photos of three people they say paid for merchandise with counterfeit American bills over the last couple of weeks.

According to police, there have been 25 incidents with the fake $50 reported since Sept. 10.

Halifax Regional Police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said they identified the suspects after looking through surveillance footage and talking with business owners.

"We do believe there are more people involved," Bourdages said Thursday.

Businesses across the city have lost thousands of dollars in merchandise, due to the counterfeit money, police say.

Investigators believe the incidents are connected.

The photos show a white man in his 20s with short brown hair and a sleeve tattoo on his right arm, who allegedly used counterfeit bills at the Halifax Shopping Centre on Sept. 12 at 6:30 p.m.

Police say he drove away in a white Mercedes SUV.

The same man also allegedly used fake bills at the Shopping Centre on Sept. 10 at 7 p.m., according to a release.

Bourdages said he visited one store during each incident.

Police also released a photo of two black women in their 20s who allegedly paid for merchandise with counterfeit bills at the Sobeys on Queen Street in Halifax on Sept. 13 at 8 p.m.

Anyone with information about these suspects is asked to call police at 490-5016, and the financial crime unit is reminding business owners to look closely at cash before taking it.

Mobile home goes up in flames

No one was believed to be living in a mobile home that went up in flames in Colchester County on Thursday.

Salmon River and District Volunteer Fire Brigade Deputy Chief Robert Logan said the property owner had recently purchased the mobile home on East Prince Street, and he believed no one was living inside it.

"The original call was a porch on fire, but it was fully involved when we got here," he said as firefighters from Salmon River, Valley-Kempton and Bible Hill continued to douse the structure.

Truro Fire Service also responded to the call, which came in just prior to 9:30 a.m., and Cobequid District Fire Brigade was on standby at the Salmon River station.

Logan confirmed the fire was under investigation and he was waiting to hear back from the fire marshal.

Firefighters were still on scene dousing the hot spots more than an hour after the initial call, which Logan believed was from someone working in the graveyard across the street. TRURO DAILY NEWS

15 million TEUs

Port of Halifax reaches shipping milestone

The Port of Halifax has handled 15 million 20-foot equivalent units (TEUs) of cargo, a major milestone for the city, it was revealed Thursday.

The announcement was made during Port Days 2014 by Karen Oldfield, president and CEO of the Halifax Port Authority. If that sounds like a lot, it is.

Lined end-to-end, 15 million TEUs would be more than 91,000 kilometres long and is equivalent to 300 million feet of cargo.

Over the past 45 years, the cargo (everything from cars to food) has arrived at port on a total of 26,300 container ships.

Bottom line: Lots of stuff comes through Halifax.

Hike up your lederhosen and bring on the beer — Oktoberfest is coming to Halifax.

The famous celebration of German culture is coming to the Halifax Seaport on Saturday and will feature everything from kids' games to sausages and, of course, beer.

Originally launched in 2009, this year's Oktoberfest will take over the entire Halifax Seaport, with its headquarters at Garrison Brewery.

"When we first got involved, it was a question of, 'How do we usher in the fall?'" said Justin Zinck, retail and marketing specialist with Garrison Brewery.

"Our CEO really liked

In addition to a kids-themed Kinderfest, the parking lot in front of Garrison will be transformed into a Bavarian-themed beer hall, complete with a cask tapping and plenty of food starting at noon.

The mayor and senior military officials are expected to be there to try their hands at cask tapping.

Starting at 7 p.m., there will be an evening of music inside the brewery.

There will be more beer, sausages, and even two pig roasts.

"The whole day is absolutely jam-packed," Zinck said.

"It's meant to be a family event celebrating good food."

Scotland decides on its future

Independence. Historic day arrives as Scotland heads to the polls to vote on whether or not to break away from the United Kingdom

The thrill of history in the making enveloped Scotland — and spooked the rest of the United Kingdom — after voters turned out with unprecedented enthusiasm for an independence referendum that could end the country's 307-year union with England.

As the polls closed late Thursday and the vote counting began, many Scots settled in to stay up all night in homes and bars to watch the results. A nationwide count began immediately at 32 regional centres across Scotland.

For some, it was a day they had dreamed of for decades. For others, the time had finally come to make up their minds about the future — both for themselves and for the United Kingdom.

"Fifty years I fought for this," said 83-year-old Isabelle Smith, a Yes supporter in Edinburgh's maritime district of Newhaven, a former fishing port. "And we are going to win. I can feel it in my bones."

At the Highland Hall outside Edinburgh, vote-counters at dozens of tables sorted through paper ballots late Thursday, watched keenly by monitors from the Yes and No camps.

Eager voters had lined up outside some polling stations even before they opened. Many polling stations were busy and turnout was expected to be high. More than 4.2 million people had registered to vote — 97 per cent of those eligible — including residents as young as 16.

A Yes vote would trigger 18 months of negotiations between Scottish leaders and London-based politicians on how the two countries would separate their institutions before Scotland's planned Independence Day on March 24, 2016.

Native women easier prey: Study

Public Safety Canada study. Aboriginal women and girls are more likely to become victims of human traffickers Aboriginal women and girls are easy prey for human traffickers because they are more likely to suffer from poverty, drug addictions and mental-health problems, says a newly disclosed report.

The Public Safety Canada study sheds new light on how women and girls are forced into the sex trade by pimps acting as boyfriends, small, loosely defined gangs and even members of their own families.

The previously unreleased research is bound to add fuel to the fire raging in Canada over the Conservative government's refusal to hold a na-

Many people who took part in the study said human trafficking and murdered and missing women and girls are just symptoms of a much larger problem.

Rapist charged with urging his victim to kill herself

A man in prison for raping a girl starting when she was 12 is now charged with trying to persuade her to kill herself by cutting her wrists and taking prescription medication while he watched on a webcam.

Michael John Morlan, 21, was out on bail on the rape charges when he spoke with the then-15-year-old girl via Skype last September and told her to commit suicide while he watched.

The girl told investigators that when she started crying, Morlan told her to stop wasting air and get it over with. The teen said Morlan repeatedly told her to kill herself. When she started cutting her wrists, he told her to cut deeper and then told her to take a handful of antidepressants, court records said.

She took the pills then panicked, disconnected the call and went to her parents. Morlan is serving a seven-year prison sentence for raping the girl. He is scheduled to be arraigned Monday on new charges including aiding or soliciting suicide.

Want the Real Beauty Benefits of Collagen?

Generate It. Don't Eat It!

BioSil™ Advanced Collagen Generator Clinical Trial Results

- Reduces Fine Lines and Wrinkles
- Increases Skin Elasticity
- Thickens and Strengthens Hair
- Strengthens Nails

By now you know. Adding body collagen directly reduces wrinkles, increases skin elasticity, and adds vital moisture to your skin. Indirectly, collagen thickens and strengthens your hair. You may also know that collagen production slows by 1% per year after the age of 21. Can you gain it back? Yes. But not by eating collagen. You see, collagen is a protein. When you ingest it, your body breaks it down, like any other protein, and uses it as food. When you want the real beauty benefits of collagen, you have to generate it.

BioSil™ generates collagen by activating the collagen producing cells in your body known as fibroblasts. It is clinically proven to increase collagen formation. In fact, in the clinical trial the women taking BioSil™ reduced wrinkles by 30%, increased skin elasticity by 89% and thickened and strengthened their hair by 13% compared to women not taking BioSil™. So when you want genuine visible results from collagen, generate it, don't eat it. Experience the beautiful difference for yourself!

Dr. Marita Schauch, BSc ND debunks myths about collagen "creams," beauty industry promises and plastic surgery to show you how and why building and generating collagen is an essential component to true health and beauty in her newest book Collagen Myths & Misconceptions.

New ISIS video
the first of three

The Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) released a video Thursday showing a British journalist who says he is a prisoner of the extremists.

In a slick three-minute video shot with three cameras, John Cantlie, a photo-journalist, said he worked for publications including The Sunday Times, The Sun and The Sunday Telegraph and came to Syria in November 2012 where he was subsequently captured by ISIS.

The group has beheaded two U.S. journalists — James Foley and Steven Sotloff — and a British aid worker named David Haines.

The clip was released by ISIS Thursday. It is the first of three lectures Cantlie says will reveal the truth about ISIS. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Man kills family,
commits suicide

A sheriff says a man killed six of his grandchildren, his adult daughter and himself in a small town in north Florida.

Gilchrist County Sheriff Robert Schultz at a news conference identified the man as 51-year-old Don Spirit. He says the children ranged in age from three months to 10 years old.

Schultz says a deputy who arrived on a report of a shooting Thursday made contact with Spirit, who later committed suicide.

A photo on the Gainesville Sun's website shows several police vehicles on a rural road. A sheriff's deputy was keeping people away behind police tape. Bell is small town of 350 people 48 kilometres west of Gainesville. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police stop beheading plot, detain 15 suspects

Australian ISIS plot. Supporters of the Islamic militant group alleged to be behind plot to kill Aussie Prime Minister

"This is not just suspicion, this is intent — and that's why the police and security agencies decided to act in the way they have," Abbott said.

New South Wales police did not say why nine of the detained people were released, or whether they would face charges later.

The raids came just days after the country raised its terrorism threat to the second-highest level in response to the domestic threat posed by supporters of ISIS. At the time, Abbott stressed that there was no information suggesting a terror attack was imminent.

Later Thursday, Attorney General George Brandis confirmed that a person born in Afghanistan who had spent time in Australia and is now working with the Islamic State group in the Middle East ordered supporters in Australia to behead people and videotape the killings.

"If the ... police had not acted today, there is a likelihood that this would have happened," Brandis told the Australian Broadcasting Corp.

Australia estimates about 60 citizens are fighting alongside the ISIS and Nusra Front groups in Iraq and Syria, while it additionally believes at least 100 Australians actively support extremist groups from within the country in capacities inclusive of training and recruitment.

Australian police thwarted a plot to carry out beheadings on Thursday that were to be conducted by local supporters of Islamic militants.

Officials said police raided over a dozen properties across Sydney and were holding six people, one they have identified as the suspected ringleader. Nine others were detained and freed before the day was over.

The raid involved 800 federal and state officers — the largest in Australian history — and came in response to intelligence that the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS) leaders were calling on Australian supporters to kill Prime Minister Tony Abbott.

Abbott was asked about reports that the detainees were planning to behead a random person in Sydney.

"That's the intelligence we received," he told reporters, noting the threats came from a senior ISIS member in Australia.

ISIS refers to the al-Qaida splinter group leading Sunni militants in Iraq and Syria.

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford released a recorded message Thursday thanking his well-wishers. Ford was diagnosed Wednesday with malignant liposarcoma, a type of cancer that arises from fat cells and can attack a variety of soft tissues. He withdrew his candidacy for re-election as mayor last week, opting to run as a councillor in the same ward he had represented for a decade before being elected to the top job in 2010. 'I will beat this,' Rob Ford vows

Audio message from hospital bed.

Toronto's mayor thanks well-wishers but also stumps for brother who replaced him in mayoral race

A frail-sounding Rob Ford implored Toronto voters from his hospital bed Thursday to elect his brother, Coun. Doug Ford, to succeed him, just hours before starting chemotherapy for a rare and aggressive cancer that forced him to drop out of the mayoral race.

In a recorded three-minute statement released by his brother's campaign team, a gravelly-voiced Ford first thanked well-wishers, saying their support meant the world to him and his family.

"With the love and support of my family, my friends, and the people of Toronto, I will beat this," he added. "I am determined to face this head-on and return strong for my family and for my city."

Ford was diagnosed Wednesday with malignant liposarcoma, a type of cancer that arises from fat cells and can attack a variety of soft tissues. His doctor said he will be undergoing two rounds of chemotherapy before they determine the next step in his treatment.

His brother entered the mayoral race after Ford withdrew his bid for re-election last Friday.

One expert was skeptical that the ill mayor's endorsement of his brother will boost support even among Ford's followers.

"I just don't think that we can expect that all those people are going to listen to that and move over, because their connection with Rob was an emotional connection," said Henry Jacek, a political science professor at Hamilton's McMaster University.

Ford's recording is not unlike the public letter former federal NDP leader Jack Layton penned on his death bed in 2011, he said.

"Some people, for whom politics is so terribly important, they feel so strongly about (it), they're delivering that political message right to the very, very end," Jacek said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Missing women

Bones found near Red River are from an animal: Police

Winnipeg police say bones found by volunteers searching the Red River are not human.

Police said on Twitter that a forensic analysis by pathologists has confirmed the bones are from an animal.

Volunteers searching the banks of the Red River came across the bones earlier this week.

The group is combing the shoreline and dragging the bottom of the river, searching for clues about the fate of missing and murdered aboriginal women.

A blood-splattered pillowcase, a bloody rug and a set of dentures have also been turned over to police.

The group formed after the discovery of the body of 15-year-old Tina Fontaine last month. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Museum for Human Rights set to open in Winnipeg

This weekend.

Brainchild of Izzy Asper comes to light after years of fundraising and controversy

SHANE GIBSON

Metro in Winnipeg

After 14 years of work, Canada's first national museum outside of Ottawa — the Canadian Museum for Human Rights — is set to open in Winnipeg this weekend.

First envisioned by the late Winnipeg-based media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper in 2000, the 260,000-square-foot museum will open its doors to the public for the first time Saturday following an opening ceremony Friday.

"People have been working so hard, they're so passionate and I think we realize what we have here — we're a little like a kid before Christmas," said museum spokeswoman Angela Cassie this week about finally opening the museum. "After all this work, having people coming through and experiencing the exhibits is an amazing feeling for all of us."

The $351-million museum, which sits at the historic confluence of the Red and Assiniboine rivers at The Forks in Winnipeg, has 47,000-square-feet of exhibit space and interactive galleries delving into everything from the Holocaust and war atrocities to the high and low points of Canada's own human rights record.

The museum has been a lightning rod for controversy during its development, with several cultural groups complaining human rights violations they've suffered are either absent from the exhibits, or glazed over.

The public will be able to take guided tours of four of the museum's galleries this weekend, and all exhibits — including the building's iconic glass Tower of Hope — are set to open Sept. 27.

Timeline

A look at the long, sometimes bumpy road to the opening of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights:

July, 2000: Winnipeg media magnate and philanthropist Izzy Asper pitches to the federal government the idea of a "tolerance" museum in Winnipeg.

April, 2003: The Asper family, federal government, province and city announce plans for a $200-million human rights museum. The feds' initial commitment is $30 million.

Oct. 7, 2003: Izzy Asper dies. His daughter Gail Asper becomes the driving force behind the museum project.

Jan., 2006: While donations pour in, The Asper Foundation puts up another $12 million for capital costs. Opening is pushed from 2008 to 2010.

Dec., 2008: The federal government essentially takes over. The price tag is now $265 million. The feds kick in $100 million, plus annual operating costs of $21 million.

July, 2009: Construction gets underway, but inflation and other factors drive up the projected cost to $310 million.

Nov., 2013: Exterior construction nears completion. An opening date of Sept. 19, 2014, is announced. The price tag has grown to $351 million.

Sept., 2014: Workers rush to finish the first four galleries in time for the grand opening. As of press deadline, it's unknown if they will finish on time.

Fahim Ali, left, and Aryn Jagshi are two of three men behind Isis, a jewelry shop in Calgary that they say is being routinely connected to an Islamic extremist group with the same name. CANDICE WARD/FOR METRO

Store named Isis may change name

Zero connection.

Calgary shop owners say they are enduring endless questions about whether their store, Isis, is connected to ISIS

JEREMY NOLAÏS
Metro in Calgary

Three years ago, Aryn Jagshi and his business partners settled on the name Isis for their jewelry shop in Calgary's Northland Village Mall in hopes of evoking an exotic vibe. Now, he claims he's being asked four to five times a day about potential connections to Islamic radicals.

"We have people come in and act like they've just solved a big mystery, like we are the ones behind these guys," Jagshi said referring to the group, known both as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham (ISIS).

Jagshi suspects some of the association may be tied to media reports of at least four former Calgary residents who headed overseas to fight with the group in recent years.

"People don't know what they're talking about," he said. "There might be somebody doing that (funding the extremist group), but they wouldn't put the name ISIS on their front door."

Isis is also the name of an Egyptian goddess, but lately the term has been prevalent in news headlines as the radical group has claimed to have beheaded two American journalists and a British aid worker. Meanwhile U.S. President Barack Obama has gone public with a plan to train Syrian rebels to fight ISIS members.

Jagshi said he's considering changing the name after the Christmas busy season. In the meantime, he may put up a sign clarifying that the profits he's making from necklaces and earrings are not being funnelled to the extremist group.

In Edmonton, meanwhile, Colleen Sims says she's "half-and-half" on whether to change the name of her company, Isis Clothing. She said she's been on the receiving end of only one slur to date, but worries about the lasting attachment to the term.

"I've been talking to my sales agents and they think it will be OK," she said. "I can't really tell you if we'll change it or not ... it's our crazy buying time, so any decision would probably be after that."

Arab Bank execs didn't support terrorism: Lawyer

A defence lawyer has told a U.S. jury that executives at Jordan-based Arab Bank aren't liable for a series of suicide bombings that killed Americans in Israel in the early 2000s.

Attorney Shand Stephens said on Thursday that there is no proof any of the executives supported terrorism.

'Transparency report.' Telus got 103,500 requests for customers' info in 2013

Telus Corp.'s first "transparency" report reveals that the Vancouver-based telecom company received about 103,500 official requests for information about its customers last year.

A majority of the requests — nearly 56,800 — were made in emergency situations, such as to verify the location of 911 callers and another 40,900 requests were for names and addresses that are publicly available through directories.

Telus also received about 4,300 court-ordered requests in 2013, mostly as part of domestic police investigations, but also two foreign requests made under Canada's treaty obligations.

It also received 154 other requests as part of police investigations into suspected Internet child exploitation, without court orders — but the company says it no longer will provide such information in most cases without a court order.

Telus executive vice-president Eros Spadotto says the company is trying to strike a balance between fulfilling its responsibilities under the law and concern for its customers' privacy.

"You don't have to look very far to know that this has become one of the key areas with clients all over the world, no matter what service provider they have, in terms of trying to understand how their information is being used," Spadotto said in an interview ahead of the report's release. Got a bag? That'll be $25. Air Canada latest airline to charge for first checked bag

Air Canada, as expected, is joining rival WestJet Airlines in charging passengers a fee to check their first bag on domestic flights, as the two airlines also finalize plans to introduce other ancillary fees in a move to boost revenue.

The new fee being charged by Air Canada applies to passengers booking the airline's lowest economy class Tango fares as of Thursday for flights beginning Nov. 2. It applies to flights within Canada and to the Caribbean and Mexico.

The Montreal-based airline has charged for a traveller's first checked bag on U.S. routes since 2011.

The country's largest airline said the fee was being introduced domestically to align it "with prevailing North American industry practices."

"We're matching the market," chief financial officer Michael Rousseau told a CIBC investor conference in Montreal.

Earlier this week, Calgary-based WestJet announced a fee, ranging between $25 and $29.50 depending on provincial taxes, for a first checked bag for some economy class customers on flights within Canada and to the United States, but not to Mexico, the Caribbean, Central America and Europe. Industry observers had expected Air Canada to add the fee which, the airline says, will affect about 20 per cent of passengers on domestic flights. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Safety board has right to investigate oil disaster

New Orleans. Court upheld right of a U.S. safety board to look into role of company in 2010 offshore oil spill

A U.S. federal appeals court in New Orleans has upheld a federal safety board's right to investigate the role of Transocean Deepwater Drilling Corp. in the 2010 Gulf of Mexico oil disaster.

Transocean owned the Deepwater Horizon rig that was drilling for BP PLC at its Macondo well, about 50 miles off the Louisiana coast, when an explosion killed 11 workers and led to the nation's worst offshore oil spill.

The company had challenged the authority of the U.S. Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board, often referred to as CSB, to do the investigation.

In a 2-1 decision Thursday, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court's ruling that the board could investigate.

Transocean officials did not immediately respond to messages seeking comment.

The investigation had continued during the appeal. In June, the board issued a report citing multiple failures and improper testing of the rig's blowout preventer as factors in the explosion and found fault with BP and Transocean.

In affirming the safety board's authority to investigate the accident, the 5th Circuit noted that the law gives the board power to look into the accidental release of hazardous materials into the air from a "stationary source."

Fighting inflation

Argentina approves price-control law

Argentina's congress on Thursday approved a law that lets the government intervene in setting prices and profits in an attempt to tackle one of the hemisphere's worst inflation rates.

Economy Minister Axel Kicillof said the measure, approved earlier by the Senate, would defend consumers against "the innumerable abuses we suffer every day on the part of concentrated groups with monopoly power."

But local business leaders said the law is likely to aggravate shortages and inflation by discouraging people from selling price-controlled goods or making investments.

The law gives the state power to set maximum and minimum prices as well as control profit margins.

GREAT SCOTS! WHAT A WEEK IT'S BEEN

It's time for the Metro List, your surefire guide to the hottest stories of the week.

1 Scotland the Brave. By the time you read this, lassies and laddies, you'll know if Scotland has chosen to go it alone. It will require a wee dram of courage because even the Bank of Scotland says it will move to London if the Yes side wins.

2 Rob Ford vs. Liposarcoma. His Worship the Mayor of Toronto goes mano a mano with a rare and aggressive form of cancer featuring a tumour that's bigger than a baseball. I don't know about you, but I'm not going to bet against Rob Ford, whatever he's up against.

3 Time to Lose the Baggage. After this week, more and more Canadians will be travelling light, as first WestJet and then Air Canada add a $25 baggage handling charge for checked bags in economy class. How long before they start charging you for that 50-pound suitcase you're trying to stuff in the overhead?

THE LIST

4 Fly Me to the Moon. Well, not quite, but NASA has commissioned Boeing and SpaceX to be the first private companies to transport humans in space. The first destination will be ISS, the International Space Station, sometime in 2017. The good news: NASA will no longer have to pay the Russians $71 million per flight. But you have to wonder how much Boeing will charge for checked baggage.

5 Worm in the Apple? Apple CEO Tim Cook puts his cool clothes on and unveils a fall crop of devices, including an iWatch that's even better than Superman's wrist communicator. The problem is that on every front, Android was there first. Stay tuned for more smug commercials that take a bite out of Apple.

6 Gridiron Violence, Si! Domestic Violence, No! The NFL is learning a hard lesson this week. When you encourage young men to beat the crap out of each other for millions of dollars, you shouldn't be surprised when some of them take their work home. Somehow, it has come as a collective shock to the system that it's not OK to knock your wife out or beat your little boy until he's bloody. Are you ready for some football, or is it enough, already?

7 War on Terror 2.0. Meanwhile, there's a war going on. I think US president Barack Obama has kinda declared war on ISIS, the latest nasty terrorist nightmare. But it's hardly shock and awe. More like this and that. The U.S. will train Arab armies to fight on the ground, while sending in airstrikes. The object seems to be to make an omelette without breaking any American eggs. Good luck with that.

The War on Bees?

RCMP investigate report that thousands of bees may have been poisoned

RCMP in Brandon, Man., are investigating a report that thousands of honey bees have been poisoned in the region recently.

Mounties say in a news release that two locations northwest of Brandon in the rural municipality of Elton are involved. They allege that poisonings are believed to have happened between Aug. 14 and Sept. 3. Mounties say the bee producers have suffered a substantial financial loss.

Dwindling bee populations have been an increasing concern in the agricultural community, though generally not because of any criminal action. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tough times

In recent years, bee populations worldwide have been ravaged by pesticides, parasites and Colony Collapse Disorder, a mysterious phenomenon in which worker bees suddenly disappear.

- California. A record drought has reduced honey supplies, raising prices and making it harder for beekeepers to earn a living.

- Ontario. A proposed class-action lawsuit has been launched against two chemical companies that make pesticides widely blamed for massive bee deaths.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The Maze Runner.

Characters spend more time talking about the forbidden labyrinth than actually seeking their way around it

Richard: Mark, the story in The Maze Runner is based on a dare. When Thomas is dropped into a mysterious walled world where a society of boys have grown up in the shadow of a giant labyrinth, he is told, "Don't go in the maze."

Of course he does, because that's like telling a teen, "Don't go through that door," in a horror flick. Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books — so yes, you can look forward to The Maze Runner 2: Electric Boogaloo coming soon to a theatre near you — and the immediacy of the story serves it well ... to a point.

It's a good set-up that turns into a becomes a standard 3D sci-fi chase flick.

What did you think?

Mark: Richard, it was dull, dull, dull, interrupted by the occasional exciting scene but it played like a dumbed-down version of Lost for paranoid teens.

Yes, the set-up is good, but so little time is actually spent in the maze, and there's too much time talking about it.

The dialogue is mostly exposition, the acting is functional at best, and although it's cut from the same cloth as The Hunger Games, it doesn't have any of its bite.

It's no spoiler alert to reveal that some will survive, and the big reveal is laughable in the way it shills for the inevitable sequel.

RC: I liked it way more than you. I liked that the characters are cyphers with no knowledge of their pasts, so they have to create personas based on their abilities in the camp.

That way, unlike most original stores, we don't have to spend much time getting to know the characters, where they came from, or what their inner torment is.

They don't know and neither do we.

Instead they concentrate on the present — their present — and survival. Imagine if the reality show Survivor was set in a world surrounded by an impenetrable maze and the only way to get voted off the island was to be eaten by a giant, mechanical Griever beast.

MB: Actually, that's a pretty good description of Survivor. Mazes intrigue me, and so do mad scientists.

Synopsis

Based on a series of wildly popular young adult books, The Maze Runner sees Thomas, played by Teen Wolf's Dylan O'Brien, plopped into a community of young men surrounded by a labyrinth. The rebellious Thomas wants to see if there is a way to navigate through the ever-changing maze that stands between the boys and whatever is happening in the outside world. When a girl, played by Kaya Scodelario, arrives with a note clutched in her hand, ("She is the last one,") it seems like the time has come to take on the maze and hopefully avoid being eaten by its evil guardians, the Grievers.

• Richard: ●●●●

• Mark: ●●●●

You'd think the combination would work here, but it just didn't for me. I preferred Cube and even the much-maligned The Village as riffs on the same topic.

Of course, you could see the movie as a metaphor for a cruel deity's continuous test of the human race, but... naaaaaah. And I really wanted a more shocking ending.

RC: I think there will be more thrills should the next part of the series ever get made.

The first movie is just the foreplay.

MB: Foreplay perhaps, but with cold fingers and bad breath.

Simon Pegg. Actor's latest role has him reflecting on cynicism, psychiatry and the malaise of modern Western civilization

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Simon Pegg goes all out in Hector and the Search for Happiness as the titular psychiatrist stymied by modern life who embarks on a globe-trotting trip to get in touch with his inner child.

To hear Pegg tell it, how you respond to the film says a lot about you.

I totally fell for this film, but then I'm a total sap. Well, one person's sap is another person's ... emotionally open person. There's nothing wrong with giving yourself over to something. It's easy to be cynical and dismiss something that's arguably sentimental as being frivolous, but I don't think that's true. I think the message of this film is a little bit more sophisticated than just schmaltz. It's about getting in touch with a childlike wonder and accessing your own happiness through that.

I found a lot of the British critics were like, "Oh no, this is terribly ... no, thank you."

That's the British critic accent?

It is! "Oh no, we don't like this. Too, too, too rough, too emotional." I get why, but if you're fundamentally unhappy, this film will shine quite a bright light on that, whereas if you have a capacity to be happy you'll come out of it going, "Yeah, man!"

At one point Hector gets very down on his profession of psychiatry because many of his patients treat it as a luxury item, but that's not the whole of that field.

I totally agree that in psychiatry you can help people to address issues that they have that might damage their lives, but at the same time when you don't have to worry about survival, when you don't have to worry about finding your next meal or living through the night, you have time to start thinking about stuff like that, and that's when you start questioning your happiness. There is a certain numbness to modern living for us in affluent society where we have so much choice and we're so looked after, pandered to, offered so much stuff that's supposed to make us happy that we completely lose sight of what it means. Whereas if you spent yesterday avoiding being shot and you know that today you're not going to get shot, your happiness would be so much more real and identifiable and easier to understand. That's not advocating not getting shot as being a way of being happy, mind you.

I don't know, I could recommend not getting shot as a way to be happy. I could certainly recommend that just purely as a survival method.

My Old Lady. Kevin Kline talks coming of age — a little bit later in life

Kevin Kline stars in My Old Lady, which opens in select theatres Oct. 3.
CONTRIBUTED

When Kevin Kline agreed to play the lead role in playwright-turned-director Israel Horovitz's My Old Lady — the 66-year-old star had a curious motivation to accept the part.

"As one ages, there are fewer and fewer roles where you get the girl," said Kline during a recent interview at the Toronto International Film Festival.

"Usually you're the old professor or the father (and) your son gets the girl and I have to give him my blessing and I get to die."

A witty light comedy, My Old Lady casts cordial Kline as a contemptuous American who gets a surprise when the Parisian apartment his estranged father willed to him comes with a string — namely a longtime, nonagenarian tenant (Maggie Smith) who has no intention of leaving.

"I just hadn't read anything like it and I thought there was something very true in the character," explained Kline whose most frequent films, include Last Vegas and No Strings Attached.

"All the characters were people that one could recognize — they weren't superheroes or super anything."

In fact, Kline (who is famously known as "Kevin DeKline" for his reluctance in choosing films) was drawn more to the character's depth and the simple psychological ties to his past. As he attempts to eject his retired renter, he begins to learn more about his estranged father and must face his conflicted childhood.

"It's about quite a bit more than just damaged people," said Kline.

"(Director) Israel (Horovitz) has taken this failure and placed him in this alien place where he's got to find himself as we all do when we're put in some foreign locale.

"He's also trying to find his footing in life and his father seems to have thrown a real curveball at him ... so there's a lot going on — it's kind of a coming-of-age movie, it's about childhood and really growing up."

Dan Stevens has a twisted sense of humour

The Guest. Actor jumped at the chance to have a role in a thriller that has him playing a veteran with a deadly secret

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Dan Stevens wanted a change and he certainly got one. After quickly developing a devoted fan base as Matthew Crawley on Downton Abbey, the 32-year-old actor was eager to shake things up. This week finds him as a vet with a deadly secret in The Guest and a troubled drug kingpin alongside Liam Neeson in A Walk Among the Tombstones. So ... pretty different.

I saw this film yesterday and ... holy crap.

That's a great response. I hope that's a good "holy crap."

How on earth was this movie pitched to you?

The funny thing was, it was never really pitched. I'd tried to sort of put the word out there that I was looking for something different, and I got sent this script. I'd recently seen You're Next, and I just really wanted to meet the crazy guys who'd made that film. When I sat down with (director) Adam (Wingard) it was very quickly established that we had the same twisted kind of sense of humour, but also the same desire to entertain. And as soon as we realized that we both really passionately loved the movie Big Trouble in Little China, we knew we were off to a good start.

The Guest opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

A classic, to be sure.

One of the many things we like about that film, particularly for me as an actor, is just that the amount of fun that Kurt Russell looks like he's having is kind of infectious as a performer. I think we were looking to capture some of that passion and enthusiasm. Growing up in England, we were steeped in American action thrillers and horror movies, and it's a kind of film that they don't really make in England. There's kind of a nod to it in Simon Pegg and Nick Frost's film Hot Fuzz, where they acknowledge that as Brit fanboys, we don't get to make those kinds of movies.

Something happened in the last 10 years or so where everyone decided action movies had to be serious.

Right. It's interesting to watch these cinematic shifts in terms of how we approach things like violence. But there's very much a kind of tongue-in-cheek attitude to The Guest. And something I was keen to explore is how you inject character and humour into an action film, something that always used to happen in '80s and '90s action thrillers.

And I kind of missed that.

Lena Dunham bares it all in memoir

A girl grows up. With a new book coming out, the Girls creator says she's learned to become comfortable with controversy

When Lena Dunham first pitched an idea to television executives for a show centred on the lives of four young women in New York City, she was met with puzzlement and condescension.

"They were like, 'You know that thing when girls live together and they suddenly all get their periods at the same time?' I was like, 'No, I don't know that thing, and even if it were true, there's other stuff I'm worrying about that I'd rather write about,'" Dunham recalls with a laugh in a recent phone interview.

Thankfully, Dunham found a home on HBO and now Girls, an unflinching look at the desires and humiliations of a quartet of 20-somethings, is set to enter a fourth season. After skyrocketing to fame as its creator and star, Dunham has turned her gaze inward to produce a collection of personal essays, called Not That Kind of Girl: A Young Woman Tells You What She's 'Learned'.

Spanning her life from early childhood to present day, the book explores topics like her obsessive health fears, awkward sexual encounters

NOT THAT KIND OF GIRL
A young woman tells you what she's "learned"
Lena Dunham

Quoted

"I think I thought sexism was on its last legs. I think I thought it was like a staggering old behemoth falling to the ground, and starting my career has just given me the sense that we have so much further to go."

Lena Dunham on dealing with public criticism that focuses on her body

"where you keep your sneakers on," being naked on TV, and of course, what it was like to prove herself in a meeting of 50-year-old male executives.

Dunham, 28, says she conceives of the book as an "exploration of femininity and feminism as it stands for young women, but through a very personal lens." She hopes that by sharing her own missteps she can help others avoid the same.

Although she has long considered herself a feminist, Dunham says her awareness of sexism has been deepened by the sheer number of online attacks on her. A quick glance at her Twitter mentions reveals a steady stream of abuse, mostly focused on her body and unabashed nudity in Girls.

"I think I thought sexism was on its last legs. I think I thought it was like a staggering old behemoth falling to the ground, and starting my career has just given me the sense that we have so much further to go.

"I always say I don't want to be the girl who cried misogyny. I really, really try to take each situation at face value. But it is amazing both in my public and private life how much of the negative dialogue I get into has to do with my femaleness."

The fourth season of Girls is set for 2015. In the third-season finale, Hannah was accepted into the elite Iowa Writers' Workshop and told her shocked boyfriend (Adam Driver) she planned to attend.

Hannah will be in "the most mature place we've ever seen her" at the start of season four, says Dunham.

"And then, um, Shoshanna cut her hair to her chin. Big hair news!" she says.

More than 'Batman without Batman'

Gotham. Inhabiting Batman's universe is a kick for series star Ben McKenzie — even if he won't grow up to be Gary Oldman

A one-sentence summary of the gloomy new comic book-based series Gotham doubles as its chief criticism: It's Batman without Batman.

Star Ben McKenzie knows this. He's the show's fulcrum, portraying a young Commissioner Jim Gordon when he's still just a detective paddling in seeming futility against a tide of crime and corruption. The show kicks off with Bruce Wayne still a child, about to endure the formative horror of seeing his parents murdered in front of him.

When the show was first announced, Simpsons writer Mike Scully tidily summed up the skepticism of many onlookers when he tweeted: "Can't wait to see Gotham to learn how Officer Gordon became Commissioner Gordon. Hoping for lots of test-taking and waiting for scores."

McKenzie was actually among the 600-plus who retweeted the quip, and — as he journeyed to Canada in the spring to promote the show — his eyes lit up when reminded of it. But of course, he disagrees.

"I understand the reflex of 'Batman show without Batman,'" said the chatty Texan, best-known for starring roles on The O.C. and Southland.

"But I think there's so many people who are really, really fans of the entire universe that surrounds Batman. I mean, do you go to the movies and see the (Christopher) Nolan versions only for Christian Bale's performance as Batman? No, of course not. You go to see all of these other characters, right?"

"I understand the criticism," he continued, "but my short answer is, just watch it. If you don't like it, don't keep watching it, but I'm really proud of the pilot we've made ... I think people who are fans of this are, for the most part,

Of course, Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. failed to completely ignite despite similarly lucrative associations. But that show featured a cast of characters almost totally new to viewers, whereas McKenzie stresses the familiarity of the Gotham universe.

Well, to most people. The 35-year-old actor, a University of Virginia graduate and nephew to Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Robert Schenkkan, notes with bemused wonder that he was given focus-group data in which a third of those polled hadn't heard of Batman.

"Lord knows where they pull these people from," he marvelled. "That can't possibly be. Now that I'm a part of it, I walk around, you go to the mall, you see people in Batman shirts, just walking around."

"It's just entered the lexicon. It's entered the never-ending zeitgeist."

Gotham isn't McKenzie's first entry point into the Batman universe. He actually voiced the avenging orphan in the animated film Batman: Year One, which also showcased the talents of Bryan Cranston — who just won a Tony Award for his performance in All the Way, a play, McKenzie points out, written by his uncle.

Growing up, McKenzie and his brother used to watch the arch, richly cheesy Adam West-starring '60s Batman every afternoon. And he loves Nolan's bleak, coffee-black cinematic take, in which intense Oscar nominee Gary Oldman inhabited the role of the noble police chief.

"Someone tweeted me that it's so cool you'll grow up and be Gary Oldman," McKenzie recalled. "I was like, 'Sadly, I don't think that's how it works.'" going to lose their minds."

For those devotees of the 75-year-old DC Comics franchise, McKenzie promises that Gotham will showcase the rogues' gallery of freaks Batman eventually goes on to fight, in variously fledgling states of villainy.

We'll learn more about Wayne, too. And McKenzie's vision for the show's eventual end would see a finally grown Wayne slip on the cape and cowl for the first time.

"(That's) hopefully a long time from now," said McKenzie, rapping his knuckles on the wooden table to keep his karma straight.

He's confident about the show's fortunes, and he's not alone. Given the show's blockbuster ties, it was earmarked early as a possible fall break-out.

More superhero shows

Comic books take over TV

Superheroes aren't just dominating at the multiplex — they're also flying onto the small screen, with at least four new TV series inspired by caped crusaders set to debut.

Gotham, The Flash and Marvel's Agent Carter will join the ranks of Arrow and Marvel's Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D. on CTV. Meanwhile Constantine, based on the DC Comics series about occult detective John Constantine, will air on Global.

Matt Ryan in Constantine. NBC

Once thought to be the realm of outsiders and nerds, comic books are now decidedly mainstream. And since they come with a built-in fan base, TV shows based on comics are a solid bet for network executives hoping to land a ratings hit.

Phil King, president of CTV programming, said in an interview during the network's spring upfronts that name recognition wasn't enough for comic book shows to last — they also have to be good.

"We already spend millions of dollars to market shows, so you want any advantage you can get where people go, 'Oh, Gotham, cool, I'll check it out.' But that only gets people in the door Episode 1. If the show isn't very good, it'll flop at No. 2 and it'll be gone by 3," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Is Avril's year-old marriage coming to a Chad end?

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Say it ain't so! After recently celebrating a year of wedded bliss — and showing off a gaudy 17-carat diamond ring to mark the occasion, Avril Lavigne and Nickelback frontman Chad Kroeger are reportedly packing it in, according to Us Weekly. "It's over. He has been going around L.A. telling people that they are divorcing," a source says.

I'm not really one to judge, but I can't believe it took her this long to realize he was in Nickelback. I guess sparkly diamonds can only distract a person from the awful truth for so long.

Kendall gets the butt-out-of-our-biz treatment from other NYFW models

Apparently there's even hazing in the fashion world, as Kendall Jenner reportedly learned during her New York Fashion Week debut earlier this month. "The other models worked so hard to get a spot on the runway and didn't think it was fair that she was there. They thought she was getting special treatment and just weren't OK with it," a source tells In Touch, adding that some of the other models "even put out their cigarettes in Kendall's drink. Models can be cruel, especially with someone new and entitled."

Shocker! Family of Clooney's bride-to-be picks up tab for dinner

As George Clooney's upcoming Venice wedding to Amal Alamuddin approaches, new details about the big day are leaking out. Italian outlet Il Gazzettino reports the nuptials will take place on Sept. 27, and Clooney's favourite newspaper of all time, the Daily Mail, reports the couple will host an intimate rehearsal dinner the night before at the Hotel Cipriani. Us Weekly, for its part, claims that Alamuddin's family will actually be footing the bill. "Crazy enough," a source says, "her family is paying for most of it."

The Church of Scientology might be down another high-profile member, as Connor Cruise — the 19-year-old aspiring DJ and son of Tom Cruise and Nicole Kidman — is reportedly distancing himself from the controversial organization and has embarked on something of a spiritual quest. "Connor is no longer as interested in being a member of Scientology," a source tells Radar Online. "Connor is in Morocco right now doing some soul-searching. He is on a spiritual journey."

Ingredients

Lasagna

- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) butter
- 1 lb (454 g) skinless and boneless chicken thighs
- 2 cloves of garlic, finely chopped
- Salt and pepper
- 1 lb (454 g) mushrooms, sliced
- 3 oz (85 g) thinly sliced pancetta, chopped
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) white wine
- 1 can (28 oz/796 ml) diced tomatoes
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped parsley
- 9 lasagna noodles, cooked al dente

Parmesan Béchamel Sauce

- 2 cups (500 ml) grated mozzarella cheese
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) butter
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) all-purpose flour

ter, if needed. Season with salt and pepper. Deglaze with the wine. Add the chicken mixture and tomatoes. Bring to a boil.

3. Cover and simmer for about 20 minutes or until chicken is cooked. Shred chicken with a fork, return to sauce and add the parsley. Adjust seasoning.

4. Parmesan Béchamel Sauce: In a saucepan, melt the butter. Add the flour and stir well. Add the milk and bring to a boil, stirring with a whisk. Simmer for 1 minute. Stir in the Parmesan and nutmeg. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside.

Assembly

1. With rack in middle position, preheat oven to 350 F.

2. At bottom of 13 x 9-inch (33 x 23 cm) baking dish, spread 1 cup (250 ml) of chicken sauce and cover with layer of noodles. Spread half of remaining chicken sauce and cover with a layer of noodles. Cover with béchamel sauce and then the remaining noodles. Add remaining chicken sauce and sprinkle with mozzarella.

Liquid Assets

Go beyond the obvious

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Wine and food pairing is an exercise in avoiding the obvious. Too often foodies focus on the main feature of a dish and ignore secondary components when picking a liquid to match.

Sauces, spices and even vegetables will influence your dinner's outcome, masking what you might think is the upfront flavour generator.

This week's recipe is a classic example. The chicken might seem the decision maker, or maybe it's the pasta noodles. It's really the can of tomatoes.

Though the humble tomato may look harmless, it's an acid bomb that doesn't play well with most wines. At the heart of Ricardo's rustic lasagna, it demands you choose a wine with an equally acidic personality.

Many Italian grapes fit the bill. A white pinot grigio or red sangiovese or barbera has more than enough acidity.

I'm partial to a pinot noir from France or California. Chateau St. Jean's 2012 Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir ($18.99 - $19.95) is a plump and juicy Californian with plenty of tomato-friendly acid and bright red fruit.

Tried, tested and true combo

1. In a pot of salted boiling water, cook the pasta until al dente. Drain and set aside.

2. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven's broiler. Butter an 8-cup (2-litre) baking dish or four

2-cup (500 ml) ramekins.

3. In a saucepan, melt the butter. Add the flour and spices and cook for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Whisk in the evaporated milk and broth and bring to a boil.

4. Remove from the heat and add 250 ml (1 cup) of the cheddar cheese, 250 ml (1 cup) of the havarti cheese and the Velveeta cheese. Mix thoroughly. Add the pasta and heat through. Adjust the seasoning.

Falkenheim leads the way on and off the ice

QMJHL. Mooseheads captain back after hip surgeries that cost him most of last season

KRISTEN LIPSCOMBE
kristen.lipscombe@metronews.ca

Whether in the defensive or offensive zone, on or off the ice, the Halifax Mooseheads know they can depend on 18-year-old forward Ryan Falkenheim.

So after three seasons, including one Memorial Cup win and one as alternate captain, the Haligonian has the C stitched onto the front of his jersey, for his fourth year with the QMJHL team he grew up watching.

"I'm just a gritty two-way guy, that's responsible in both zones," Falkenheim described himself as a player, some of the very reasons he has been named captain.

"The Moose are a team you look up to when you're younger, and something you strive for. Being named captain makes it even more special."

While he has plenty of experience with the Herd, Falkenheim steps onto home ice as captain for the first time Friday night. The Mooseheads face off against the Moncton Wildcats at 7 p.m. for their home opener, at the newly named Scotiabank Centre.

"They're all ready to go," he said of veterans and rookies alike.

The team is so motivated that Falkenheim doesn't anticipate having "to tell them much" before the puck drops.

"I just have to play my game on the ice, and keep doing the things I do off the ice," he said of illustrating good habits. "Leading is something I like to do."

Despite his success with Halifax, it hasn't always been easy for Falkenheim, who only played 14 games last year due to bone growths in his hips that caused FAL, or fem-oroacetabular impingement, which required two surgeries.

"It was tough watching, especially come playoff time," he said of last season.

But Falkenheim is back, and looking forward to making "another run" at the Memorial Cup, while leading by example, including working hard to stay healthy each and every day.

"I just need to maintain my hips and keep them going," he said, adding athletic therapist Diane Ouimet has helped him get back in shape. "Diane does a great job with me on massage and stretching me out."

Head coach Dominique Ducharme said Thursday that attention to detail is what makes Falkenheim an exemplary captain for younger players, "just by the way he prepares, the way he handles himself."

"He's doing those little things that a hockey player needs to do to be successful," Ducharme said. "Whether it's off the ice, or on the ice, he's a sharp kid."

Herd has no problem with being seen as underdog

The Mooseheads prepare for Friday's home opener on Thursday at the Scotiabank Centre. JEFF HARPER/METRO

Don't underestimate the Halifax Mooseheads this season.

That's what Herd veterans said about a 2014-15 lineup that is fairly young, but very determined.

"People are underestimating how good we are," alternate captain Austyn Hardie.

"We're a young team that wants to work hard every game."

The 24-player roster features nine rookies.

"We've got some young guys who've got some skill that really no one knows about," said Hardie, who is expected back in action for this week-

Rejoining the team

Second-year forward Daniel Moynihan was back on the ice Thursday after attending the San Jose Sharks rookie camp as a free agent and forward Philippe Gadoury is on his way back from training with the Montreal Canadiens.

end's two games after recovering from a lower-body injury.

"We've got some offensive D," he said, "and we've got more offence than a lot of people think."

Second-year forward Vincent Watt, 18, agrees the Herd's hard work should pay off this season.

The rookies are looking "really strong," he said, especially in the absence of five top veterans who have been at NHL training camps this month.

The Moose fell 4-1 to the Acadie-Bathurst Titan, but then edged the Charlottetown Islanders 6-5 in overtime, on the road last weekend.

"Last year it was harder to keep the hype of the Mem Cup year," Hardie said. "Take the pressure off, and teams play better." KRISTEN LIPSCOMBE/METRO

Avalanche plunge into new territory with old man Iggy

Avs forward Ryan O'Reilly undergoes physical testing on Thursday in Denver.
JACK DEMPSEY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL. Up-and-comers from Colorado have added veteran know-how to flashy core Jarome Iginla took a few wrong turns and got lost heading into the office for his first day of work.

So new to town, it's understandable the Colorado Avalanche forward can't quite navigate his way to Denver's Pepsi Center yet.

His direction on the ice, though, is impeccable. That's why the Avalanche brought his leadership to Denver, hoping the 37-year-old can take them to the next level.

This is a team that surprised the NHL last season by tying a franchise record with 52 wins in coach Patrick Roy's first season. They also lost a Game 7 at home against the Minnesota Wild.

That first-round loss still bothers captain Gabriel Landeskog, who reported for physicals Thursday with an early start on his playoff beard.

"Last year we just wanted to make the playoffs and make a push," said Landeskog. "Now, it's about taking that next step and sending another message that we want to be a Stanley Cup contender."

To facilitate that, Colorado was quite active in the off-season. They acquired defenceman Brad Stuart from the San Jose Sharks and forward Daniel Briere from Montreal.

And when they lost fan favourite Paul Stastny through free agency, they went ahead and signed Iginla, who has 560 career NHL goals.

New (old) guy on the block

"There are going to be some fun nights because of the things they can do."

Jarome Iginla on the prospect of playing on a line with Ryan O'Reilly and Matt Duchene

"He's a natural goal-scorer," Roy said. "I think he's going to be very helpful to our guys."

Already renowned for his intense off-season workouts, Iginla stepped it up even another notch this summer so he can keep up with Colorado's youngsters. Roy is leaning toward pairing Iginla with Ryan O'Reilly and Matt Duchene.

"This is a very young, dynamic group," said Iginla, who scored 30 goals for Boston last season. "Lots of speed, lots of skill and guys that are very competitive."

The Avalanche caught the hockey world off-guard last season by winning the Central Division. Roy was named the league's top coach and Nathan MacKinnon the rookie of the year. O'Reilly earned the Lady Byng Award for gentlemanly conduct.

"If it's on the golf course, anywhere in Denver, there's an excitement and we want to continue to have our fans excited about our team," Roy said. "Last year we approached it that we wanted to surprise the world of hockey. I think if we can go even deeper in the playoffs that would surprise the world of hockey again." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Penguins

Crosby, Malkin already dinged up

Penguins forwards Sidney Crosby and Evgeni Malkin will be held out of the start of training camp as a precaution with what the team described as minor injuries.

First-year coach Mike Johnston said both players were injured in the lead-up to camp, which begins Friday.

Neither injury is considered long term. Johnston added Crosby's issue is not related to a wrist injury that hindered him late last season and into the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"We'll see over the next few days, I don't expect any of them to be long," Johnston said. "But when the trainers and the doctors inform us at this time of the year that we better be cautious with a few people, then we're going to be cautious." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wild

Kuemper gets deal after Harding injury

The Minnesota Wild have signed goalie Darcy Kuemper to a two-year contract.

The Wild finally secured Kuemper on Thursday, one day after starting goalie Josh Harding broke his right foot. The injury helped motivate the Wild to get a deal done with Kuemper, who went 12-8-4 with a 2.43 goals-against average and a .915 save percentage in 26 games last season.

The 24-year-old Kuemper was locked in negotiations with the Wild all summer, with the sides unable to come to agreement and training camp set to begin.

The Wild were already thin at goalie, with Harding missing much of last season while dealing with multiple sclerosis, and veteran Niklas Backstrom struggling with injuries. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lang itching to rematch Japan

Derek Jeter helps Yankees beat Jays

Ukraine asks FIFA, UEFA to suspend Russia

Ukraine's football federation called on FIFA and UEFA on Thursday to suspend 2018 World Cup host Russia from international football over the Crimea crisis.

Hours later, UEFA insisted Ukrainian and Russian officials held a "constructive and ordered discussion" at its headquarters earlier Thursday "with goodwill shown by both sides."

The Ukrainian federation was enraged when three clubs from Crimea, annexed by Russia in March, moved to play in Russian competitions.

UEFA has ruled that it will not recognize Crimean clubs results, saying a team winning a Russian competition after playing a Crimean club would not qualify for Europe. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dwyer broke wife's nose, punched her

Head-butt. Police report says attack came after she refused his sexual advances

Fear

"I'm calling the police."

Dwyer's wife shouted as she held her swollen face and clutched to her 17-month-old son.

Arizona Cardinals running back Jonathan Dwyer head-butted his wife and broke her nose after she refused his sexual advances, and punched her in the face the next day, police said Thursday.

The details surfaced in a law enforcement report a day after Dwyer was arrested on aggravated assault charges and deactivated from all team activities after he was taken into custody at the Cardinals' practice facility and headquarters in Tempe. He spent a night in jail and made a brief court appearance before being released on a $25,000 bond early Thursday.

The arrest came at a time when the NFL and its commissioner are under fire over a series of violent off-the-field encounters involving some of the league's marquee players, including Ray Rice, Adrian Peterson and Greg Hardy.

The NFL has said the Dwyer case will be reviewed under the league's personal-conduct policy.

On Thursday, the Cardinals placed Dwyer on the reserve/non-football illness list. A person with knowledge of the situation said Dwyer was undergoing mental evaluation because of mentions of suicide referred to in police documents.

Dwyer was arrested Wednesday for investigation in two altercations that occurred on July 21 and 22 at his Phoenix residence, just days before the Cardinals reported to training camp. His wife left the state after the incidents, but came forward a week ago after Dwyer apparently sent suicidal text messages including a photo of a knife. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hester sets a new NFL record with his 20th TD return

Atlanta Falcons wide receiver Devin Hester, right, recovers the ball after Tampa Bay Buccaneers cornerback Alterraun Verner, left, fumbled during the first half on Thursday, in Atlanta, Ga. Hester ran back a punt 62 yards down the left in the second to give the Falcons a seven-touchdown lead. JOHN BAZEMORE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Epic slump continues. Texas sweeps dejected A's

The Oakland Athletics are stunned by their September collapse, yet stuck to find a solution.

And with the way things are going, manager Bob Melvin can't talk about playoffs, let alone plan for them.

Sonny Gray and the A's kept tumbling Thursday, falling out of the top AL wild-card spot with a 7-2 loss to Texas that gave the Rangers a three-game sweep.

"It's not very fun. When you're in a race, it's supposed to be fun," left fielder Brandon Moss said. "But I don't see anyone in this clubhouse having any fun, because it's not. We're pretty frustrated. We're disappointed. But it's not over, and we know that."

The latest loss to the team with the worst record in the majors dropped the A's a half-game behind idle Kansas City for the first wild-spot slot. Oakland owned the best record in the big leagues as recently as Aug. 15.

"We're still in the wild card. All that's moot unless we start to play better. We'll find ourselves in no position if we continue to lose," Melvin said. "You've got to fight being beat down based on what has transpired here recently.... It's tough sometimes to get over these things. They're all accountable for what they do. We all are." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

A relationship may be going through a rough patch but the planets indicate there's nothing to worry about. You could still make things easier by not giving them the impression you don't care, when you do.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

It doesn't matter what threats you make today, a work colleague will move at their own speed — and that's dead slow! Grit your teeth and bear it.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Your priority now must be to get out into the world and do what Gemini's do best to have fun. Career and money worries can be left until another day.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

There will be good and bad days but there will be a lot more of the former if you change the way you assess what is "good" and "bad". You can be far too hard on yourself.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

However difficult your current situation, you'll handle it with ease. You need to realize that whatever you have to face is what you're meant to face.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

What happened in the past is irrelevant to your present situation. Look back only to learn a lesson or two then look and move forward.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Don't beat yourself up about something that went wrong. If you indulge your emotions, you may lose sight of good things you have to be thankful for.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Something that made perfect sense a while ago now seems to make no sense at all. A day or two from now you will have forgotten why you thought it was so important.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You may have strong views on controversial topics but the planets warn this is not the right time to make an issue of them. Wait until the Sun moves in your favour on the 23rd.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You may be having a great deal of fun but have you considered the consequences which could arise from some of your more impulsive actions?

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The answers you seek are easily found, but only if you ask the right questions in the right way. You're an Aquarius, so think, speak and act big.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

The best way to deal with a negative situation is to ignore it. If you do, it'll quickly shrink in importance. The more you focus on what's going wrong, the longer it will stick around.
